

Healing at a distance is possible

Durazo Biomagnetism»
6-8 minutes

Summary: The belief that access to biomagnetism is limited because there are a limited number of therapists worldwide is wrong. The fact is that everybody on earth has access, even if you live in a remote part of the world.

Every day we are helping people from faraway places take control of their lives by restoring proper balance and helping them obtain optimal quality of life without them having to come to us.

We do this through a science called "distance healing."

Distance healing may seem strange to you and it was for me at first. But after years of practicing, I know that it works just as well as if the person arrived directly at our centre.

Recently I did distance healing for two different women who had been in the hospital for about a month. One was hospitalized as a result of Guillain Barre Syndrome (paralysis) and the other as a result of lung cancer.

The woman with Guillain Barre Syndrome had immediate improvement and was released that week and sent to a rehabilitation facility. The woman with lung cancer also showed immediate improvement with more energy and had an easier time breathing.

The way we in the Goizean biomagnetic/bioenergetics field perform Distance Healing sessions is by putting magnets on a person who is not the intended "target."

In these particular cases, the brother of one lady and the daughter of the other came in. Had a relative of theirs not been able to come in, then I would have used one of our assistants to serve as the surrogate to send the therapeutic effect "over the distance."

We only do distance healing if the intended "target" gives us permission; in other words, we must have consent. Consent isn't necessary when we are doing this for children since it is the parent's responsibility to care for their children.

When I use our assistants as surrogates, I generally put the call on speaker mode and have the "target" give me (the therapist) their verbal consent.

From this point forward the communication channel has been opened.

Through this science we are showing people that we can provoke a biochemical shift in a person regardless of their distance from us.

This may seem strange because this understanding is a significant departure from current scientific paradigms. How can a therapist communicate with the cells of a person who is on the other side of the world?

The truth is that our DNA holds the answers to many of our problems and we can communicate healing to that DNA.

Researchers into water like Dr. Esther del Rio and Dr. Masaru Emoto are showing that our mind's intention can produce structure and information changes in water crystals that are inside of us as well as in water crystals outside of us. Remember that we are mostly water.

This understanding allows us deeper investigative power to discover people's psychological, emotional and spiritual obstacles, among other things. It is this ongoing scientific research that allows us understanding of how distance healing is possible.

When we have the understanding of what our true obstacles are, then we have the ability to shift our thinking and actions to overcome those multidimensional barriers so that we get to the destination where we really want to be; this is to be in control of our lives.

Srinivasan Pillay, writing in The Huffington Post, told the story of a scientific study that proved distance healing can be highly effective. At the same time, he noted that within the scientific community, there are a number of people who believe in the concept of distance healing, and another group who think the very idea of it is spooky and unrealistic.

In the scientific studies done to date, there are four physical principles described to support the concept.

The first is that an as yet unknown energy transmits intention and secondly, this intention warps space and time much like gravity, building pathways for healing connections.

The third is that people, all particles as captured in quantum physics theories, have instantaneous correlations across distance.

The fourth idea is that intention can be measured as a commodity in quantum physics. It organizes random possibilities such as how wave functions can be collapsed into a single function.

I encourage you to pick up my book Biomagnetism: The Mind, Body and Spirit Recalibration System that comes with magnets available at www.SaveMeMagnets.com.

Remember that biomagnetism is essentially a vibrational therapy which screens your body for pH imbalances and restores health by striking a balance between the acidic and alkaline levels of your body.

You do this by placing medium intensity magnets on specific areas of the body for a short period of time.

You create a biomagnetic pair when you place medium-intensity magnets over two specific areas of your body that are connected energetically and resonate with each other. One is a positive acidic and the other is negative alkaline.